

of the first ten constitutional amendments on December 15, 1791.

In 1794 Governor Henry Lee appointed him United States Senator to fill an unexpired term. This he declined as he did the position of Secretary of State and the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, tendered him by Washington. John Adams wished to appoint him minister to France, but he refused this honor also. In 1795 he purchased a handsome estate, Red Hill, Charlotte county, where he spent his closing years in dignified and happy retirement.

State Delights to Honor.
This is the man whom his native state, Virginia, remembers with honor today in the placing of a tablet on the walls of St. John's Church, where the supreme effort of his life in oratory was made. Hon. Alden Bell, of Culpeper, who introduced the bill into the Virginia Legislature, securing an appropriation for the tablet, will make the address of presentation, and will have as a kaval the key to St. John's, the home in Hanover county, Va., of Sarah Winston Henry and John Henry, of Aberdeen, Scotland, her husband. Lord Patrick Henry was born on May 29, 1726.

The Patrick Henry pew in St. John's Church will be occupied today by the nearest living descendants of the great orator—Mrs. William Wirt Henry, her daughter, Mrs. James Lyons; her son, William Wirt Henry, and Miss Susie Delaney, of Lynchburg, Va., who has been chosen to draw aside the veil from the tablet.

Descent of Miss Dabney.
Miss Dabney's mother was Florence Miller, daughter of Margaret Henry and William A. Miller, of Lynchburg. Margaret Henry was born at Red Hill, the Henry home, in Charlotte county. Her parents were John Henry and Elvira Bruce McClelland. John Henry was the youngest son of Patrick Henry, and only three years old when his father died.

Other descendants will occupy a space in the church specially reserved for them. The famous Studley key belongs to Hon. James Lyons, to whom it was given by his grandfather, the late James Lyons. It came down from Judge Peter Lyons, the owner of Studley, by purchase.

Buried in Charlotte.
Patrick Henry is buried at Red Hill, which still belongs to the Henry family, being now owned by Mrs. Matthew Harrison, formerly Miss Grace Harrison, daughter of the late William Wirt Harrison, of this city. An oblong slab of marble covers the grave, and is inscribed with the dates of Henry's birth and death and the simple words, "Here lies his best epitaph." Under an adjoining slab rests the remains of his wife, Dorothea Dandridge Henry.

Red Hill has suffered less change than many historic Virginia homes. The box hedges which mark the walks and driveway and the old-fashioned garden drive the place a distinct flavor of ante-bellum days.

ANOTHER LEGAL TWIST TO EDDY WILL CONTEST

Grandnephew Files Petition Asking Leave to Intervene in the Suit.

Concord, N. H., March 21.—One more legal twist in the Eddy case. Grandnephew of the late John B. Eddy, who was the plaintiff in the Eddy case, has filed a petition in the superior court asking leave to intervene in the suit. The suit is between the Eddy estate and the Eddy family, who are the defendants. The suit is about the Eddy estate, which was left to the Eddy family by the late John B. Eddy. The suit is about the Eddy estate, which was left to the Eddy family by the late John B. Eddy.

John B. Eddy's petition asks that he be allowed to intervene in the suit. He claims that he is a grandnephew of the late John B. Eddy, and that he is entitled to a share of the Eddy estate. He claims that he is a grandnephew of the late John B. Eddy, and that he is entitled to a share of the Eddy estate.

OBSERVE THE SABBATH

In Post-Office Only Necessary Work Will Be Done.

Washington, March 21.—Sunday work in post-offices throughout the country is to be discontinued so far as consistent with the facilitation of the transmission of mail.

In the important post-offices only such work as will prevent congestion and delay of mails must be done. Mails will be received and distributed as heretofore, while arrangements are made for a limited delivery through distribution windows. The distribution of mail will be continued. Special delivery letters will be delivered and patrons of any office will be afforded the privilege of having their mail delivered on Sunday by depositing the required fee with the postmaster. Postmaster-General Hitchcock's idea is to afford employees of the postal service one day's rest in seven.

FAITH HEALER INDICTED

Wills Vernon Cole Has Support of Christian Science Church.

New York, March 21.—Wills Vernon Cole, a faith healer, was indicted today by the grand jury on four counts, including charges of unlawful practice of medicine and violation of the pure food laws. The indictment follows Cole's arrest last Friday evening, when he was charged with practicing medicine without a license. Cole is a member of the Christian Science Church, and has the support of prominent Christian Scientists. The indictment is a step in Mr. Jerome's insistence that the case go before a jury for decision.

Postpone Gebhardt Trial.
The trial of Christopher Gebhardt, indicted on a charge of running a gambling house, was postponed today in the Hastings County Court to April 10. The postponement was granted on account of the absence of several witnesses for the Commonwealth.

Transfer Buckingham Prisoners.
Ed Jones and Richard Perkins, the negroes charged with the murder of William Hamilton, who are to be tried here yesterday, were transferred from the Henric County Jail to the State Prison today. A change of venue was granted them by the Supreme Court.

CLOUDS OF WAR HASTEN WEDDING

Young Officer and Fiancee Decide to Marry While Chance Is Theirs.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Norfolk, Va., March 21.—Deciding this morning that the uncertain conditions in naval and military circles, owing to the threatening war clouds, made future meetings dubious, three hours after the decision was made, Miss Grace Laurens Howard, daughter of Rear-Admiral and Mrs. T. B. Howard, and Lieutenant-Commander James Morton, United States Navy, were married today at high noon in Christ Church, Rev. Francis A. Steinhilber, D. D., rector of the church, performing the ceremony.

Rear-Admiral Howard, father of the bride, is in command of the third division of the Atlantic fleet and did not know of the marriage, as he was in upper Chesapeake Bay with his ship, the USS. The bride's home is in Annapolis, where she is a member of the Annapolis Club. Lieutenant-Commander Morton is in command of the torpedo boat destroyer USS. The wedding was a simple affair, and the bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and a few friends.

The only attendants at the marriage, which was very informal, were Mrs. R. C. Needham, wife of Ensign Needham, United States Navy, Lieutenant-Commander J. S. Dandridge, United States Navy, commanding the torpedo boat USS. The wedding was a simple affair, and the bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and a few friends.

TENNEY DIVORCE CASE CONCLUDED

terized as so bold an attempt at fraud that Mrs. Tenney never even showed the letter to her attorney. The letter, which was found in the possession of the defendant, was a copy of a letter from the defendant to the plaintiff, in which the defendant offered to pay the plaintiff $10,000 to settle the divorce case. The plaintiff refused the offer, and the case went to trial.

Royal's Closing Argument.
Mr. Royal, in closing, characterized Mr. Wendenburg's whole argument as "a series of misstatements, misquotations, and misrepresentations." He said that the defendant's argument was "a series of lies and falsehoods, and that the plaintiff was entitled to a divorce on the ground of the defendant's adultery and fraud. He said that the defendant's argument was "a series of lies and falsehoods, and that the plaintiff was entitled to a divorce on the ground of the defendant's adultery and fraud.

mony of Tillman Bunch was not important, his "perjury being merely mud-throwing against Mrs. Tenney's character, while he used his place as a guest in her home and admirer of her daughter as a spy in the interests of Mr. Tenney."

Bunch was characterized as a gambler and drunkard, who had failed in the navy and was now in the employment of Mr. Tenney's company, having failed otherwise to support his wife. "That's how they get their absurd story about Major Gordon and Mrs. Tenney in a Pullman car and a New York story to Tenney," said Mr. Royal. "He again said that Major Gordon was now on the staff of the War Department, and that he was a spy in the interests of Mr. Tenney."

There is evidence, suggested Judge Grinn, "as to his condition on the two days he was in Richmond. He again said that Major Gordon was now on the staff of the War Department, and that he was a spy in the interests of Mr. Tenney."

Both sides then rested their cases. Mr. Wendenburg called for proof other than the letter of Mr. Tenney, which was a copy of a letter from the defendant to the plaintiff, in which the defendant offered to pay the plaintiff $10,000 to settle the divorce case. The plaintiff refused the offer, and the case went to trial.

FUNERAL AT NOON

Legislative Committee Named to Attend Wingo Services.

MAKE THE START

While nearly every one is convinced of the value of saving as a preparation for the future, or as a means to secure the capital needed when business opportunity presents itself, too many postpone the preliminary step—the starting of a savings account.

But let the start be made and then the saving becomes a good habit, and the habit grows as the savings accumulate, and great is the later satisfaction. A start is not difficult—begin with as little as $1.00, on which we allow 3 per cent. compound interest.
